
ROMANCE OF SALE IN $500,000

BARONET'S BRIDE ADOPTED SON OF BRICE

New York, April 16.—When strolling down Fifth avenue on March 9 last, Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen, British tobacco king, was served with papers in a suit for $500,000 instituted by Marvella C. Brice.

Two days later a summons in the case of "Marvella C. Brice vs. Hugo Cunliffe-Owen" was filed in the Supreme Court of this county. With no other official action, the suit had passed society and the newspapers for five weeks.

Discovery of papers that had accumulated for almost two years in a country courthouse and additional investigation by the American throws light upon the mysterious suit and reveals a romance that is like a tale out of fiction.

Spread over two continents, the story is that of an obscure American girl, with a brief career in the movies and a career in the city, who has become the wife of a baronet reported to be worth $500,000.

RECORDS TELL OF UNHAPPINESS.
In the town of Goshen, seat of Orange County, N. Y., are brief records, dated for almost two years by order of Supreme Court Justice Rogers, that tell the tale of the marital unhappiness of Helen Brice and Marvella C. Brice.

Helen Brice before her marriage at Ashbury Park on March 13, 1914, was Miss Helen Elizabeth Oliver, sometimes called Maude Oliver, daughter of James H. and Mary Elizabeth.

Col. Logan to Enlist in Benedicts' Army

Washington, April 16.—Cham Clark, minority floor leader and former speaker of the House, is a candidate for the Democratic Presidential nomination at San Francisco convention.

Following an editorial announcement that Clark, the strongest nominee for Democracy, appearing in the New Orleans Item, published by James M. Thompson, the Democratic leader's son-in-law, the former speaker today said he stood ready to accept the nomination if it was tendered him.

"Barks is willing," he replied with a typical twinkle when questioned as to his candidacy.

Clark declared he would make no personal campaign to secure the nomination. He said that he had no intention of leaving his home in New York to go to San Francisco.

The former speaker said he preferred to stay in New York and support the Democratic nomination from there.

Clark's declaration was made in the face of reports that he had been offered the nomination by the Democratic Party.

Factory Workers Organize to Beat H. C. L.; Factory Girls to Wear 'Jeans'

Salem, April 16.—The "overalls" club idea has struck Salem. In an effort to beat the high cost of clothing, employees of the Hygrade Lamp Company have taken up the innovation of wearing the outer protectors.

While the girls will wear their new apparel only while at work, the men are to wear them all the time, beginning in about a week.

Gingham Club Formed by New York Women
New York, April 16.—The overall and gingham protest against present high prices of clothing was indorsed here by several hundred men and women, who declared their intention of getting in the night on profiteers in wearing apparel.

Men and club women, writers, attorneys and other professional women, stenographers and housewives, joined in the pledge to wear gingham dresses until prices come down.

The Cheese Club, an organization of dramatic artists and press agents, in a declaration today stated they would be the first to wear the overall in New York.

At a meeting of the boys of Jamaica High School it was voted to wear khaki coats, trousers, and shirts.

Ballots Sent Out in State's Trucks

Ballots for the presidential primaries are being delivered in points throughout the State in motor trucks, under supervision of the State, instead of by the express companies, as in other years. The companies refuse to promise delivery on schedule time.

The first ballots left today for Philadelphia, Springfield, Greenfield, Hingham and Worcester. The trucks issued to the State by the Motor Department, were guarded by a detachment of State troops. Five of the first trucks were laden with ballots. Four were emergency trucks. A third of 1,500,000 ballots will be delivered.

Boston will get its ballots on Monday morning. The distribution of the ballots by the State will mean a large financial saving.

INSIST GERMANY DISARM ARMY

Paris, April 15.—The Foreign Office today authorized the statement that France, Belgium, Italy and England have agreed upon the demand that Germany at once take measures for the immediate disarmament of her army as provided in the peace treaty.

If Germany refuses the allied powers have agreed to send diplomatic relations with Berlin. Furthermore, the allies are united upon the proposal to put a new blockade in force if a new German military coup is successful. It is understood that the agreement will be put in writing when the inter-allied supreme council meets at San Remo next week.

Report Luitwitt Takes Charge in Ruhr Area
Cologne, April 15.—It was rumored here today that General von Luitwitt, one of the supporters of the Kapp military coup, has reached the Ruhr and taken over General von Watter's post as commander of the Reichswehr. It is also reported that the German government has received 25,000 reinforcements and are preparing to move south of the Ruhr.

Germany in the Cologne area believe the Reichswehr commanders are preparing to resist any attempt by the allies to enter the Ruhr district to enforce treaty terms.

Hotel Proprietor and Employee Arrested in Whiskey Raid at Worcester

Twenty barrels of whiskey, which were reported "stolen" from the store of Michael H. Olson, at No. 216 Washington street, Brighton, on Monday morning, were recovered today at Worcester.

Hotel owner, and Charles Conner, an employee of Sullivan, were arrested. Harry Nutting, a chauffeur in the employ of Sullivan, was taken under arrest. He is now in the custody of the police.

Worcester. He with Sullivan and Conner are being detained under charge for the present pending the placing of the facts before the Federal court.

Federal Prohibition Enforcement Officer William J. McCarthy with Agent Rogers of his force are working on the case.

They assert that the goods alleged to have been stolen on Monday morning from a store in Washington street, Brighton, were the same district on the night of April 5 and 6, nearly a week before. They assert that they have the name of the chauffeur who moved it into the store.

Today they made a sensational descent on Worcester, and, after stopping at the New Hotel, they went to the home of its proprietor, Jeremiah J. Sullivan, in Montrose street. There they viewed Mr. Sullivan. A short time later two auto trucks drove up to the Sullivan menage.

In the darkness only the automobile headlights to guide them in the work. They pulled twenty barrels of liquor out of the Sullivan cellar and put them aboard the trucks.

It is understood that Sullivan asserts he purchased the liquors. The rest of the story is for the time being withheld by the prohibition officers.

Brighton was arraigned on Monday last when (Sullivan announced that during the early morning in fact within two hours, fifteen had forced a raid due to his establishment and stolen away two barrels of liquor, whiskey and rum, which he valued conservatively at $14,000. The illicit value of it was in the neighborhood of $4,000.

Glynn resides in Jackson avenue, Brighton, in a handsomely furnished home. He was at one time a resident of Marlboro and is well known both in that city and in Boston. Mr. McCarthy refuses at the present to discuss his next move in the case.

THEODORE N. VAIL DIES AT BALTIMORE

Telegraph message was sent in 1914—the historic phrase "What did I do wrong?"

The parents of Theodore N. Vail moved from Ohio to Meriden, Conn., where Alfred Vail, brother of Theodore, owned the Westcott Iron Works. Theodore, then a boy, lived with his parents and naturally became interested in telegraphy, with which his uncle had been identified. He became an operator at Meriden, Conn., though his parents planned medicine for him.

When the youth was twenty-one the family moved to Ohio and Vail became an operator on the Union Pacific, then building. In 1910, when he was twenty-four, Theodore N. Vail secured an appointment to the railway mail service and rose in seven years to be general superintendent at Washington of the entire railway mail system. Not satisfied with the service, he resigned it. He was then only thirty-one.

FIRST MEETING WITH BELL.

In Washington 30, Vail met Professor Alexander Graham Bell, the Boston University professor who had discovered how to transmit sound by electricity. In 1912, when Vail was thirty-three, Professor Bell and his associates induced him to come in with them and push the telephone. From the first Vail had said the telephone was no toy, but "a great thing."

For nine years Vail devoted himself to the telephone business and became general manager of the American Bell Telephone Company. Then his health failed and he retired to rest and travel.

He was then a rich man. He settled on his 400-acre estate at Lyndonville, N.Y., and stayed there three years. Then he went to South America, to the east bank of the Argentine Republic, as already related. He came back to Lyndonville and was deep in cotton, wool, art and other sale and finance, when the telephone people sent him a Macedonian cry for a secretary's assistance.

ANSWERED CALL AT 82.

Mr. Vail answered the call at the age of sixty-two and became president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company in 1917, succeeding Frederick P. Piper, who had succeeded him in 1910.

In November, 1919, President Darius C. Lowry of the Western Union Telegraph Company resigned and Mr. Vail succeeded him. This business head of two monster companies.

For over twenty-five years there had been litigation between the two companies, with a $10,000,000 suit brought by the Western Union. The practical, if not actual, merger of the two companies, with a $10,000,000 suit brought by the Western Union, was ended by Mr. Vail's election, usual in the history of both telegraph and telephone administrations.

He resigned in June, 1917, to become chairman of the A. T. & T. Board of Directors. He was a director in many corporations, among them the First National Bank of New York, First Security Company of

New York, American Surety Company, United States Rubber Company, National Shawmut Bank of Boston, Lyndonville (Vt.) National Bank and the Empire City Storage Company.

WAS TWICE MARRIED.

Mr. Vail was twice married. In 1890 he wed Emma Hughes, who died in 1904. In 1907 he married Mabel Rutledge, daughter of Boston, who survives him.

IN 1911 Mr. Vail opened a farm training school for Vermont boys at his 400-acre estate at Lyndonville. He successful was this school that the years later he announced that he would throw it open to all boys and girls of New England. He further promised to donate the entire farm to the project and to widen the institution liberally. This plan was later adopted and in 1915 arrangements were completed whereby the place of Vermont could have in trust for educational purposes the major portion of the great property that was developed on the heights overlooking the three villages of Lyndonville.

Mr. Vail's farm was the joy of his life, but unlike the majority of wealth in this country, the large part of it was accumulated and maintained in the country, the large part of it was accumulated and maintained in the country, the large part of it was accumulated and maintained in the country.

a large herd of Jersey cows, all of which will go to the school.

On July 15, 1911, Mr. Vail celebrated his seventy-third anniversary on the farm, and informed interviewers that it was one of the happiest of his life.

In 1917 Mr. Vail was appointed chairman of the National City League, at the age of seventy-two years. This league was composed of some of the biggest men of the country and was organized for the purpose of utilizing the nation.

IRISH UNION CARRIED BY FRAUD—MAHONY

Constitution derives its whole authority. The government proceeds directly from the people. It is "ordained and established" in the name of the people, and is designed to be maintained. In order to form a more perfect union, the people were at perfect liberty to accept or reject it; and there was no fraud. It required not the signature, and could not be rejected by the people. It was adopted, when this adopted, was of complete authority, and bound the state accordingly.

The formation of a league, such as was the confederation, the state accordingly was entirely competent. But when, "in order to form a more perfect union," it was deemed necessary to change this alliance into an effective government, possessing great sovereign power, and acting directly on the people, the necessity of referring it to the people, and of deriving its powers directly from them, was felt and acknowledged by all.

The government of the Union, then, whatever may be the influence of this fact on the case, is, emphatically and truly, a government of the people. In form, its powers are granted by and emanate from them. Its powers are exercised directly on them, and for their benefit.

After the Civil War the same league was again substituted by the United States Supreme Court in the following cases: In the case of Lane County v. Oregon (1891), 7 Wall. 71 at page 78, Chief Justice Chase makes the following statement:

"The people of the United States constitute one nation, under one government, and this government, within the scope of the powers with which it is invested, is supreme."

"Both the States and the United States existed before the Constitution. The people, through that instrument, established a more perfect union, by substituting a national government, acting with ample power, directly upon the citizens, instead of the confederate government, which acted through the States, greatly restricted, only upon the States."

"The general condition was well stated by Mr. Madison in the Federalist: 'The Federal and State governments are in fact but different agencies and trustees of the people, constituted with different powers and designated for different purposes.' White (1880), 7 Wall. 700 at page 716, Chief Justice Chase makes the following statement:

"The Union of the States never was a purely artificial and artificial relation. It began among the colonies, and grew out of common sense, mutual convenience, kindred principles, similar interests, and geographical relations. It was confirmed and strengthened by the necessities of war, and consolidated definite form, and character, and sanction from the American people. By these the Union was solemnly confirmed to our posterity. And when these Articles were found to be inadequate to the exigencies of the country, the Constitution was ordained to form a more perfect Union." It is difficult to convey the idea of indissoluble unity more clearly than by these words. What can be indissoluble if a perpetual Union, made more perfect, is not?"

On page 716 the following: "Considered therefore as transactions under the Constitution, the ordinance of secession, adopted by a majority of the citizens of Texas, and all the acts of her Legislature intended to give effect to that ordinance, were absolutely null. They were utterly without operation in law. The obligations of the State, as a member of the Union, and of every citizen of the United States, remain perfect and unimpaired. It certainly follows that the State did not cease to be a State, nor her citizens to be citizens of the United States. If that were otherwise, the State must have become foreign, and her citizens foreigners. The war must have ceased to be a war for the suppression of rebellion, and must have become a war for conquest and subjugation."

Lord Bryce has recognized this principle in his statement:

"The Union is not a mere compact between communities disjoined at pleasure, but an instrument of perpetual efficacy, and available by them only in the manner which its own terms prescribe." (Am. Commonwealth, I, 313, 314.)

In the case of the United States, therefore, we find a voluntary agreement, on the part of the people, to establish the national government, an act, which the people, in their vested sovereignty, had the power of doing. It was not a mere agreement, but a declaration of the people of a federation by the individuality of the people of the country, who were the remaining parties to the agreement, that great majority were justified legally and morally in preventing the attempted secession. The only legal way to change the Constitution was as set forth in the Constitution, viz. amendment.

In 1789, as has been said, England renounced forever all claim to legislative power for Ireland. No other power than and by the State Legislature, the instrument was submitted to the people. They acted upon it in the only manner in which they could act safely, effectively and wisely, on such a subject, by assembling in convention.

"From these conventions the people of the United States adopted the Constitution, and confirmed it to our posterity. And when these Articles were found to be inadequate to the exigencies of the country, the Constitution was ordained to form a more perfect Union." It is difficult to convey the idea of indissoluble unity more clearly than by these words. What can be indissoluble if a perpetual Union, made more perfect, is not?"

Filene's—grows by giving VALUE

FILENE'S today is growing faster than ever. This is not by accident. It is due to the fact that the sterling principle of value-giving upon which this business was built has not been discarded at a time when old-fashioned trading principles have been somewhat forgotten. With prices high and goods scarce there has been a tendency "to take what you could get" and pay whatever price was asked. The Filene store has, even under these trying conditions, tried just as hard as ever to protect its customers' interests, endeavor to keep prices down, and give them better values. And as we said—it is not by accident that Filene is growing faster than ever. It is because folks find that "their money still goes farther at Filene's."

BRITISH PROPOSED IRISH UNION

Prior to the act of union, the franchises were not enjoyed by Catholics or Presbyterians. The approximately three-quarters of the Irish people were Catholics and, therefore, not represented in the Irish Parliament of 1800. Of the 300 members of that Parliament, 184 were in reality nominated by 52 peers, 91 were nominated by 52 commoners, the balance only could fairly be said to have been elected. More than two-thirds of the Parliament was composed by 195 men, yet Ireland then contained more than 4,000,000 people.

It was not the Parliament as a whole, but the majority, which was exclusively by the representatives of the Protestant minority, while the Catholic majority were excluded from all share of political power. It was not chosen by the vote even of the Protestant people. Nearly two-thirds of its members were sent in by a system of nomination from within all popular influence was excluded. The Irish Bill, Nov. 18, 1912.

Confronted the above we find the following: In the act of Union, was not supported by the voice of the country at large. (Cornwallis Corresp., III, 313.) Still, the validity of the act of Union does not rest upon the consent of the Catholics of that time. "Twenty-seven counties have petitioned against the measure. Though there were 707,200 Catholics and signed petitions against the measure, the total number of those who declared themselves in favor of it did not exceed 8,900. Direct terms express its disapprobation of a political measure than Ireland has done of a legislative union with Great Britain? In fact, the nation is nearly unanimous." (Lord Grey, 1850, on the union.)

lary Cooke, 1798, cited in Reg. v. O'Connell, defendant's argument. Lord Cornwallis, Lord Lieutenant, under whom the Act of Union was put through the Irish Parliament, stated, "I despise and hate myself for engaging in such dirty work." (Cornwallis Corresp., III, 313.)

Vol. III, pp. 209-210. For some of the money bribes given confirming O'Connell's statements, see the same, Vol. II, pp. 141-142. "It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that anything in the gift of the Crown in Ireland, in the Church, the Army, the Law, the Revenue was uniformly and steadily directed to the single object of carrying the Union." (Lucky, Hist. of Eng. 18th Cent., VIII, 663.)

ROCKPORT MAY SEE WILSON

Long Island and New Jersey Estates Also Possible Summer White House Sites

Washington, April 16.—Now is the open season for picking a location for the Summer White House for 1920. There are many speculations in the air as to where the choice of the President, with the consent of his physician, Admiral Cary T. Grayson, will light.

Among the places known to be given close consideration is the famous Rosemary Farm at Huntington, L. I., the home of Roland R. Conklin, the sugar magnate. The locality is looked upon as particularly suited to the requirements of President Wilson's health.

Rockport, on the northern coast of Massachusetts, is also being considered. The bracing sea air and the cool climate of the New England coast are features which the President's medical advisers believe are desirable for him in his present condition.

Another place being considered is Owl, N. J., not far from the Summer White House of 1916, "Shadow Lawn." It is also the Summer home of Secretary Tamm.

Ashville, N. C., and Saratoga, N. Y., are also in for honorable mention.

NEWTON SEEKS NEW SCHOOL

Highlands Improvement Association Urges New Structure to Relieve Congestion

More than two hundred Newton residents attended a meeting held under the supervision of the Newton Highlands Improvement Association in Lincoln Hall, Newton Highlands, for the purpose of taking some action that would alleviate the present congested conditions in the elementary and high schools in the Newton Highlands.

Arguments as to how to solve the high school situation occupied the greater part of the meeting. Most of those present voted in favor of a motion for a new high school to be located on the South Side. "The first step would be played before the Board of Aldermen for action."

While the elementary school situation was not discussed in any great extent, Lyman F. Wheeler, superintendent of the Newton schools, stated that in view of the fact that the number of pupils will increase instead of lessen, three new elementary schools are an absolute necessity.

THREE PROJECTS PRESENTED.

The question of portable schools to relieve the situation in the elementary grades was raised. Superintendent Wheeler stated that no less than ten portable structures were needed at once, if the pupils of the grand schools were to receive full benefits.

Three projects were presented by E. B. Brown, president of the Improvement Association, as suggestions which would take the greatest cooperation. They follow:

1—Enlarging the present high school.

2—Establishing a new high school on the South Side.

3—The organization of a junior high school.

While the proposed erection of the new South Side high school received the majority of votes, the junior high school, in the minds of some, would be as likely a solution to the situation.

The establishment of a junior high school would embrace the seventh and eighth grade pupils and those in the first year of high school. The courses suggested would be modern languages, pre-vocational and commercial courses.

JUNIOR HIGH EXPONENTS.

Dr. Ballou, assistant superintendent of the Boston schools, spoke of the advantages and disadvantages of junior and senior high schools. He spoke most favorably of the junior high school system, saying that it had a tendency to keep the pupils in school for a longer period.

In relation to carrying the present High School arguments were advanced showing that in order to provide the necessary addition and the much-needed gymnasium the cost would be approximately $500,000. The opinion of those present was that the new South Side building would be preferable as it would not cost much more than this figure.

Newton High School, this year, which is 250 more than in any previous year. Other speakers included Mrs. T. Walker, Edmund C. Johnson, Hiram Miller and Albert Melan. President Brown presided.

How These Kennedy Stores Keep Clothing Prices Down

We believe it to be true that these eight great stores have done more to put the brakes on soaring clothing prices in New England than all the probes, protests, inquiries, commissions, investigations, regulations and resolutions that have been or may be instituted. The way we've done this is by cutting the cost of distribution to the irreducible minimum and by operating on the smallest possible margin of profit.

These Eight Kennedy Stores are operated as one. Their combined buying power is so great, and their cash payments so persuasive, that we get every possible price and quality concession known to the trade. Thus we buy to better advantage than almost any other clothing concern.

We either own our own buildings or pay low rentals. We have no high-salaried figureheads. We avoid the big expenses and inevitable losses of charge accounts. Thus it is that in proportion to the size of our business, our running expenses are the lowest on record.

Not only are these buying and selling advantages passed along to our customers in their entirety, but we also operate on the smallest margin of profit of any clothing store we know of. That makes three separate savings on every purchase you make here.

So just bear in mind that no matter how scarce or how plentiful clothing may be, or how high or low the prices may go, you can always come here and get whatever you may need to wear for considerably less money—quality for quality—than in any other store—anywhere.

The Kennedy Prices this season on
start at $40 and range upwards to $85

Nowadays, $40 will usually buy a suit of only indifferent quality, though we're selling very good ones indeed (not Kuppenheimers) at $30 and $35. But the $40 which accomplishes so little elsewhere will bring you a Kuppenheimer Suit in this Live Store, with all the style, fabric quality and fine tailoring for which these great makers are noted. For still finer quality, you can pay as much more as you please up to $85, beyond which, under present conditions and while this store is at your service, no man need go to obtain the choicest the market affords.

Said Theodore ROOSEVELT:

"Every man who is not professionally religious must, if they are frank, admit that no community permanently prospers, either morally or materially, unless the church is a real and vital element in the community life."

Put a church in a town and all real estate values increase.

Put a church in a town and it becomes at once a center of inspiration for better schools, better politics and general community improvement.

Put a church in a town and you insure a community where law and order reign, where the personal and property rights of men and women are respected, where children grow up trained in the ideals that have made America great.

Kill the church and you kill the Voice that is constantly calling men to more unselfish living.

Kill the church and you cut the nerve of your hospitals, your colleges, your civic organizations and even of respect for government itself.

Thirty denominations, realizing that the problems facing them are too great to be solved by any one denomination alone, are cooperating in a great forward campaign under the name of the Interchurch World Movement.

No modern business could have made a more scientific survey of the task than these denominations have made. No budgets could be more carefully drawn. You have the satisfaction of knowing that every dollar you give has its post of duty assigned to it in advance.

Every dollar for a better America and a better world. For an America—where the ideals of Washington and Lincoln and Roosevelt will continue to grow strong. When your church calls on you in the campaign week of April 25th give, and give with your heart as well as your pocketbook.

STECKER AND LONDON AGREE ON JOE KILGURY TO REFEREE BIG BOUT

WIZARDS OF MAT TO MEET ON NIGHT OF HOLIDAY

By TAD PREPARE FOR 15,000 FANS AT KLOBY-BRITT CONTEST

Joe Stecker and Jim London have agreed on Joe Kilgury of Laconia, N. H., as referee for their match in Mechanics Building on Monday evening. Both wrestlers wired to Promoter Tuesday that they had left the matter entirely in his hands, and that means Kilgury will be the third man in the ring when this great pair battle it out to a finish under American Wrestling Association rules.

The match has certainly stirred up great interest, especially among the Greeks, who idolize London, and who cannot see where even a marvel like Stecker has any chance with their aggressive countryman.

Giants Shut Out, 1 to 0, in Fine Pitching Battle; Rival Shortstops Star

By NICK FLETCHER.

New York, April 16.—This large village has passed the stage of surprise and is wondering now just how good a team George Stallings has hammered together for his Braves.

The opening day disaster to Gotham was put down as an accident; but the Braves' second victory in a hard-fought, all-night game has started the mortuary to working.

By all odds and the rights of things, the Boston entry dropped out of the race at the Polo Grounds and let the Giants walk around triumphantly. But the Braves have been smothered twice, and there aren't many who have watched the teams in their pair of games who will say that a third catastrophe of a similar kind was out on the way today.

As Stallings announced just before the curtain went up, he packs a little more punch and a little more spirit than the other fellows have figured. He has a few defensive muscles, one that will hold up pitching just now as well as any in the business.

Oeschger Holds Giants For Nine Innings

For two games the good pitching has been in evidence and the Braves are proudly showing the way to the well-known league. Joseph Oeschger stepped into the ball at first, and went and went Eddie Kiera on right, leaving calmly through nine tight rounds.

Joe was all tangled up in a pitcher's frame from the opening gun, but never turned a hair, and pitched a better game than he ever did while a Giant or a Phil.

Joseph was a target of all things in the South and came forth and exemplified them. He didn't just walk the ball through as of yore. He was shooting at weakness all the time, and though it did cause him to walk several of the hostiles, it evens out in a about just six safeties were perked off the Oeschger delivery, no two coming in one inning. Super backing kept all the Giants away from the saucer, which was very necessary, as Fred Toney did a bit of flinging himself. He was only nipped for five by two of the Bumpers come in the seventh frame and resulted in a run.

Rabbit Marvelli gave a splendid exhibit of short stop, handling a batch of difficult chances as he alone can do it. He was in the right spot for every batter, and was always hobbing up with the ball when a Giant threatened, he is faster in the right now than we have ever seen and is keeping the team in the game with fine spirit. The Braves were enough in their young minds, and are likely to be somewhat of a sensation, unless things go unacceptably to smash.

Cruise's Hit Pried Off Lid in Seventh

As he did in the opener, Cruise cut considerable ice in the second win. It was a solid hit of his that pried off the lid in the seventh. He swiped second while Howack was fanning and came over on Men's. He swiped the right right armily, hauling down a lone liner under the guns in the ninth. Larry Doyle hit the saucer and had it covered. The game would have been tied up as nobody happened to be out at the time.

All the Braves were sanguine over another victory today, as Dana Pittsford showed more stuff against the Tigers than any of the others, and the Giants never have been partial to mortal ball pitching.

That evidence a few days ago when Allan Russell of the Red Sox made them look like school boys, swinging after the carrying apple.

The Braves appear to have slightly under the weather since the return

I Don't Say That the Montrose Worsted Company's Fabrics Are Worth Suit to Order $75.00

I do say that these Montrose fabrics, of which I purchased twenty-five full pieces, are absolutely all wool and worsted, which were sold to me at a price, supposed to be $1.50 a yard less than the opening price quoted. I am making these suits to order, ten styles to select from, at a price of . . .

Analysis of the reason for a lowering price at this season may be found in the word "Fear." With worsted selling higher than ever in the history of the tailoring trade and marked for the coming season at prices approximately 20 per cent higher, one of the richest woolen dealers in New York City sells me this range of goods. These are perfect, 13 to 14 ounce weight fabrics, fine, Fall, I would have to charge, at least $55 or $65, and all things considered, they are far superior to some of the merchandise quoted and advertised from $50 to $75.

I don't care if you are as large as a whale, I offer you your choice of these goods on which you will find the original tickets. Montrose Worsteds Company's Absolutely All Wool and Worsted.

Hiram Johnson Has No Fear of Revolution; He Fears Reaction

The primary elections in Michigan and Illinois have startled and awakened the country. They have given the American people the first real view of the real sentiment of their fellow-citizens on present day questions. The noisy propagandists, the thousand-tongued moneyed interests, with their kept ventriloquist newspapers, stand silent before the sober voice of the people of Michigan and Illinois.

The morning after the last Congressional elections, in November, 1918, when it appeared that the country had elected a Republican Congress, the American analyzed the results.

We had strongly supported the President in asking the country to stand by him in the peace negotiations then soon to begin. The President himself said that any other result would be a "regeneration" of his course in the war. But with the election results at hand, we said that the Administration had been rejected by the country for its invasion of the citizens' personal liberties, its espionage acts, its gag laws and the violent revolutionary interpretations which it insisted Congress to give to these laws, that caused the constitutional freedom of our citizens.

Our spirit and our jury, originally the bulwark of our liberties, had been made by the Administration instruments of force. The sober, thoughtful, undemonstrative and unvoiced majority expressed their disapproval of these undemocratic and dangerous tendencies of our Government in the last Congressional elections.

A reactionary Republican organization, by taking advantage of the distrust the Administration had aroused in liberal-minded citizens, was returned to power. The Republican victory was obtained by its support of liberal voters who wished to register their opposition to Administration policies of repression.

But the Congressmen elected were for the most part nominated by the reactionary Republican machine. They have since supported the Administration in continuing the very repressive measures which the country disapproves, and have even attempted to make into permanent laws those encroachments upon our liberties which were only excused as war measures.

Now it has come to pass that neither the Republican nor the Democratic party has the approval of the people at large.

The best proof of this is the revolt in the State of Michigan and the fact that in the Illinois primaries on Tuesday nearly 50,000 voters wrote Hiram Johnson's name on the ballots, although he had declined, out of courtesy, to run as a candidate in Governor Lowden's own State.

In Michigan Leonard Wood had the most elaborate machine working for any candidate, backed by a small group of men of great wealth and organizing ability. The second choice of the reactionaries there was Governor Lowden, whose machine is financed by his own money. The large fortune of this solid, conservative business man came to him by the sale of his tube works for several times their original value to the Steel Trust.

The one man whom the reactionaries of Michigan and Illinois hated, the man whose name was associated with denunciations of these repressive gag laws; who from his place in the Senate had protested most vehemently and eloquently against them; who had protested against the private war against Russia because the Russian people had set up a government which pleased them and did not suit the high financiers of America and England and France; who is against the League of Nations root and branch, was Hiram Johnson of California.

Senator Johnson has little money and no political organization. His candidacy rests solely upon his political principles and his record. He believes in the public ownership and operation of the essential public utilities, such as street cars, railways, telephones, telegraph lines, electric light and gas companies. He believes in the Initiative and Referendum. He believes that we should have let the Russian Revolution work out its own salvation. He believes in the right of free speech, the right of our citizens to criticize our Government whenever they please. He believes that the Bill of Rights is the soul of our Constitution. He believes in the traditions of our fathers, in the warning of Washington to avoid foreign alliances.

Hiram Johnson defeated the reactionary Republicans in Michigan more than two to one in the Republican primaries, and in Illinois four times as many votes as were cast for Theodore Roosevelt in the Illinois primaries four years ago were cast last Tuesday by voters who went to the pains of writing his name on the ballot. He was not a candidate in the primaries.

In the Democratic primaries the law is the same. Attorney General Palmer has stood for the gag law, for alien and sedition laws in peace times more drastic than Prussia or Russia had under the imperialist regime of Czar and Kaiser. He compromised as Attorney-General with the Beef Trust, giving it immunity for alleged offenses which he had himself proclaimed and denounced in his political speeches. He failed to apply the Government's case against the Southern Pacific Railroad in the suit for possession of oil lands—millions of acres of the former Government domain—claimed by the railroad.

Mr. Palmer had the entire Democratic machine behind him, with all the office-holders in the country, and the tacit approval of President Wilson. He was overwhelmingly defeated in the Democratic primaries in Michigan by every other candidate whose name appeared on the ballot. His defeat was so crushing—he received only 7,000 votes—that there has been nothing like it since President Taft's debacle in 1912.

Politicians often succeed in deceiving themselves, but they do not long succeed in deceiving the people. They cannot frighten the country into tolerance of reaction by manufactured lies about Russia or the dangers of revolution in the United States.

The country agrees with Senator Hiram Johnson. He "does not fear revolution; he fears reaction."

COWARDICE
IT MAY MEAN

By Garrett P. Serviss

"What is cowardice? What makes a young man afraid of being punched in a fight, and what makes him receive bruises from any other source without a whimper? Is it a heredity, or does it become part of a person after birth by the environment or circumstances? By answering you will change and might help one—H. R."

TO bear pain sufficiently after it has been inflicted and can no longer be avoided is not courage but fortitude, or power of endurance. This is a quality that may be notably strong in a person who would show cowardice in the face of danger.

A coward is defined as "one who dreads pain or harm unduly" or "one who yields to fear." However, the application of the term cowardice under these definitions must be determined by circumstances.

The question of duty to oneself and to others comes in. Prudence has its claims, and there are cases in which obedience to those claims may involve a higher courage than disregard of them. "He who fights and runs away may live to fight another day." There is sound philosophy in that old saying. To recognize when you are defeated, but to hold firm to your cause and resolve by retreating to preserve the means of retrieving it, that is the meaning.

How far heredity is concerned in the possession of the quality of courage by any person I am unable to say—heredity is a difficult subject. But I am sure that environment has much to do in the matter. The influence of example goes far.

If you see some other boy "take his punishment" manfully, his conduct will strengthen your own spirit, unless you are indeed hopelessly "chicken-hearted." I would not by any means advocate fighting, but the boy who reaches manhood without ever having employed his fists to defend himself or to see right done is poorly prepared for the stage of this energetic world.

Discontent in Navy

Editor Boston American:

The letter by H. L. Arnold regarding navy pay which appeared in Tuesday's American comes pretty near hitting the mark about discontent in the navy. The navy was never in such a demoralized condition as it is at the present time—disaffection and discontent are rife, and unless Congress takes some early action the navy, as far as efficiency is concerned, will be a thing of the past.

Sugar and Alcohol
Says Lenin, to the World
—By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1920

Is it ever pleasing to see costly property wasted? It is. A trainload, filled with waste metal, pulled out of the great Crucible steel factory yesterday morning. Many freight cars were loaded with costly and now rusty shells, made to carry explosives and kill human beings.

Those shells, wasted, will never kill anybody. They were on their way to the scrap heap evidently.

It will be a blessed day for the world, when every shell, sword, cannon, rifle and revolver shall have gone to the scrap heap to stay, with the "iron virgin" the dumb screw and the rack.

We are not ready for that quite yet. The world contains many millions of human beings that can be kept from killing only by the fear of being killed, as it contains millions that can be kept from sin only by fear of being burned alive hereafter. You must retain an ammunition factory, and belief in hell fire a while longer.

When your baby cries, chews his hands, has swollen gums, you do not worry, wish you were dead. The little white tooth is coming through.

Labor is the holy now. Ignorant old Mammy Capital worships, feasting Bolshevism, or some other terrible disease. It is only the fifty-cent dollar coming through.

Your dollars are worth fifty cents, lucky for the poor if a dollar will buy as much as fifty cents' worth. When you paid a man one dollar you must now pay him two. This is the new standard of the trouble. The new standard of value is not the dollar, but the work of the average man.

Formerly you could buy a sheep for four shillings. Then a dollar was worth twenty dollars of today. The dollar value is always changing inevitably. Science and machinery constantly increase the value amount of wealth that a day's labor can produce. Selfishness, in the form of organized cunning and intelligence, strives to get all of the increased product of labor for itself, and succeeds, so well, ordinarily. But war shakes things up every little while, and the dollar is revalued. In this latest shakeup the dollar has had one-half of its value shaken out. That is all.

Prepare for sugar-selling soon at thirty-two cents, later at fifty cents. You will be told "keep down prices." It may be going to, but it doesn't keep them down.

This country used to consume 72 pounds of sugar for every man, woman and child. Now it uses 92 pounds. The difference, which amounts to a great deal more than twenty pounds per male adult, is due to severity of alcohol. The still planted by nature in your insides, beyond the reach of law, makes sugar into alcohol. Men eat sugar to make up for alcoholic drink.

Consumption of sugar in the United States has increased by two thousand million pounds a year. We need one-quarter more of the sugar the world produces. And we have lost one-sixteenth of the world's total population. We want four times our natural share of the world's sugar. To get it, we shall pay high for it, especially with profane lips.

You wonder where your money goes. One cent of it goes to Europe daily. Kahn, head of the Military Committee, says it costs one million and a quarter a day to keep our army across the water. That is a little more than $13 a year for every United States man, woman and child. You may say, "What do I care about $13.65, it will only buy a quinine of a pair of shoes, anyhow." True, but thank your stars the peace leaves did not go through. With that he gets it safely cost only cost 100 times $13.65 to other in Europe, Asia and Africa the orders of foreign nations.

Mrs. Reik, requesting a divorce, alleges that the colonel, her husband, much changed, takes a cold view of married life since he went to Europe. He "kissed the lips of the French and the upper class English."

The martial morality of "upper class" Englishmen and other upper to the world: "I'll do anything you want me to do, but I won't do it for a price." But French morality, not excepting this one. No families are more closely united than French families, so husbands and wives more devoted, insured with respect for each other than French husbands and wives.

The Russian government, which we shall recognize eventually, says to the world: "I'll do anything you want me to do, but I won't do it for a price." But French morality, not excepting this one. No families are more closely united than French families, so husbands and wives more devoted, insured with respect for each other than French husbands and wives.

Old we pay the debts of the South when the Civil War ended? We did not.
